HOME INDUSTRIES

ECONOMIC LESSONS TAUGHT BY EDITORS OF MANY PAPERS.

COMBATTING A COMMON EVIL

Practices of Sending Dollars from Communities Where Earned Helps Along the Centralization of Business.

Apparently the press is now fully aroused to the importance of combatting the evils of patronizing other than home enterprises. Editorial and local columns of the papers, especially in the western states, are filled with common sense articles setting before the people such facts as appeal to reason and patriotism. Some editors in their zeal to accomplish good, perhaps go too far in abuse of systems that take money from their neighborhoods, and by severe criticisms of patrons of outof-town concerns "overshoot the mark" and fail to accomplish what is much desired.

earner has the inherent right to spend his earnings wherever he desires. If cure. Others may charge him what Quite often he may learn that he without a careful examination of them. When this is the case-and it few things that the average man and that they send away means money taken out of local circulation, and the of their own existence. consequent impoverishing of the community to that extent. Say that there are 2,000 people in the community. Five dollars a year from each one sent afar amounts to $10,000 a year, and in ten years $100,000. Supposing that a fifth or sixth of this represented the profits that should be left in the community. It would be quite enough to establish a business enterprise that would support several families. But from some communities the average amounts sent away for goods is from a third to a half and often more than the total paid or needed supplied. Think of what a great loss that is! Think that this trade, given to the home town, would immediately increase its business from a third to a hair! How many years would it take if the home trade principle was adhered to strictly before your town would be more than double in size? It would only require a very few years. And with the growth of the town everyone living within its limits and its trade radius would receive a benefit

All the residents of a community have common interest in it. The laborer, the farmer, the merchant, the doctor and the lawyer prosper in common. Their interests are parallel. The community is cooperative. If the merchant employed men from some distant city to do his work would patronize an out-of-town doctor and the town doctor send away for the help he needed, the laborer would suffer, and suppose that the laborers would send away for their eggs, their vegetables, fruit, butter, etc., would not the farmer be affected? Suppose that the merchant is compelled to do business without profit; can be pay as good wages to his help as they should be entitled to? So it goes down the line. The better the home town can be made, the better it is for all. Be a patron of home tudustry. and by being such you assist yourself and all in your neighborhood. D. M. CARR.

MISUSE OF THE MAILS.

How the Law Reads Under Which the Postal Department Excludes Frauds.

United States pertaining to illegal use visitors to the community will seek waist measure four and one-fourth of the mails reads as follows: "Any fields elsewhere, person, who having devised or intended to devise any scheme or artifice to defraud or to be affected by either opening or latending to open correspondence or communication with any other person whether resident within or without the United States, by reason of the post office establishment of the United States or by inciting such other persons to open communication with the person so devising or intending, and for executing such scheme or artifice, or attempting to do so, shall place any letter or package in any post office of the United States, or take or receive therefrom. such persons so misusing the matis shall be punishable by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500) and imprisonment of not more than eighteen (18) months, or by both such punishments."

Is Concentration Desirable?

He who thinks that a 10,000-acre farm under control of one man, who reaps all the profits of its operation, is better than 100 100-acre farms owned by 100 men, each of whom reaps the reward of his labor reasons erroneously. If the big farm is not for the best why then build up big stores in the large cities that do the business of 1,000 small stores in the smaller towns? Why kill off the business of the local town and help make wealthier the proprietors of the big concerns in the great cities? Does this question call for an answer?

Progressive Farmers.

The average American farmer is a progressive mortal. He is always ready to learn new things. He lately realizes more than ever the necessity of education in his business. He no longer ignores the fact that science is the farmer, the more interest will he improving the community in general, | grounds of 54 per cent. in that period | Madras Hindu.

HOW SCHEMERS WORK.

Cooperative Plans Used to Get Dellar from the People of the Country.

Financiering or promoting has be come a particular science. This new science has taken the broad name of "system," and to "system" is attribthrough the magazine articles, and the children. The back is quite plain and disclosures made of the transactions of many big concerns which have been investigated by the courts. When simmered down, it will be seen that it is by use of money contributed by the masses of people, and placed in the control of the few that the masters of finance are enabled to rob and build up at will, give and take, and let the people go to the bowwows.

It is not the intention berein to deal particularly with the gigantic institutions, but to show how the principles employed by them are also brought into use by promoters of schemes of lesser degree. And here an anomaly presents itself, plainly showing how short-sighted the masses of people are. None will gainsay that the wage- the small-caliber schemers who apply "system" use as their main props the cry of "trust" and "robbers." he wishes to buy his clothes in some they know the cupidity of the masses, distant city, he has that privilege, and by presenting what appears a Sometimes he may have cause to do plausable scheme of cooperation get so. Remember that it is a poor scheme that does not carry with all appearances of soundness, for this is essential to the success of it.

WANDERING WEARY WILLIES.

Towns by Adopting Proper Ordinances Can Assist in Decreasing Vagrancy.

Like unto the poor, the tramps and the "hoboes," it seems, we have "with us always." With the coming of win- attractive models of the season is ter they drift from the north to the shown in this stylish seven-gore skirt, decade of years prosperity has been universal throughout the United States, and employment for all willing to work, still the wandering, lonely, unfortunate, remain as an object lesson of ignorance and indolence. Still in America conditions are such and local laws have tended toward bettering the conditions of these "Weary Willies," and we find year after year their number is decreasing. They are the unfortunates of humanity. Men with morbid mentalities, with criminal instincts developed that make them a menace to the public. There is the harmless tramp, a proper place for him should be in the home for feebleminded; there is the indolent tramp, with all mental faculties developed whose place should be in the workhouse, and there is also the wandering vampire, who is the criminal at heart and whose proper place should be in Section 5480 revised statutes of the will be avoided and the troublesome will all develop stylishly. The old-time workers in metals, whose productions have come down to the present age as models of the true in line and beautiful in art, never did their best work, fashioned nearest to their loftiest ideals, until they used the "fine spun gold" from which such statues as that of "Diana of the Ephesians" were wrought. Cheap material is brittle, and so is easily broken and which they are to be put the less iron and steel are worked over. For instruments which are to acquire a fine edge and serve important and delicate purposes the best steel is selected and then is fired and bammered and polished to the degree nearest perfection that it is possible to attain.

So the spirit and heart and brain which is most ductile and flexible and quick to take the desired edge and God's hammering that it may become fit for high and delicate uses. The natures of those who have by many been thought to be so "lucky" in having so few trials are not because of their unfineness and consequent unfitness, selected for the hammering and refining that brings forth the wonderworking tool of God -Delineator.

Horrors Endured by Russians. Many horrors must be endured by Russians, convicted of political offenses. Nikaleiff Petrovich Starodvorsky was sent to prison in April, 1884, a young fellow of 21 years. He came out a few months ago, a man of 43, with an appalling experience behind him. He and his companions were shut up in the prison of St. Peter and St. Paul in St. Petersburg. The cells in which they were confined were hardly above the level of the river. When the river was in flood the rats invaded the cells in order to avoid drowning. One of the female prisoners, who had a child in her arms when she was sentenced, was obliged to watch it night and day lest the rats should devour it. The food was insufficient in quantity and detestable in quality and cockroaches were found thing terrible, and the doctors said it in it. Of his years' experiences, M. Starodvorsky says that of 48 prisoners five committed suicide, three got themselves shot in prison, three died mad and nine of illness. Insane prisoners were kept with the sane and he him-

A Lesson in Etiquette.

Priscilla had, unknown to her mother, paid a visit to one of her small friends, says Harper's Weekly, and on her return Mrs. Parsons was disturbed to note the soiled dress her child wore.

"Priscilla, do you see that big spot? What do you suppose Mrs. Blakeslee thought of such a dirty dress?" she asked.

"I don't know," was Priscilla's prompt reply. "If Mrs. Blakeslee saw it, she was too polite to mention it."

The Sexes and Dreams.

The number of men who dream frequently is 27 per cent.; that of women is 45 per cent. As a general rule, it may be said that the weaker sex has twice as much tendency to dreaming as the opposite sex.
